

WELCOME TO THE FINAL GUIDE

You made it. If you've followed this series from Guide 1 through Guide 4, you've done the hard foundational work: you've defined your brand, built a content system, posted consistently, and started reading your analytics like a pro. You know who you are, what you stand for, and what your audience responds to.

Now it's time to grow.

There's a critical difference between posting and growing. Posting is showing up. Growing is being found, shared, remembered, and chosen — over and over — by people who were strangers just weeks ago. Millions of businesses post every day and stay stuck at the same follower count for years. The ones who grow are doing something different: they are actively engineering their reach using every free lever available to them.

This guide is your blueprint for exactly that. Every strategy, tactic, and tool in these pages is 100% free. No ad budget required. No agency needed. Just your time, your creativity, and the proven organic growth system you're about to learn.

Let's build your audience.

THE ORGANIC GROWTH MINDSET

Why "Post and Pray" Doesn't Work

Most small business owners treat social media like a bulletin board: they pin up a post, step back, and hope someone notices. This passive approach — sometimes called "post and pray" — generates little growth because it ignores the fundamental truth of how social platforms work in 2025 and beyond.

Algorithms are not random. Platforms are businesses, and they reward content that keeps people on the platform longer. If your content doesn't signal engagement, reach, or retention, the algorithm simply stops showing it to new people. Posting without a growth strategy is like opening a store and never telling anyone where it is.

Organic growth requires intentional action before, during, and after every post.

The Three Levers of Organic Growth

Every organic growth strategy you'll ever encounter pulls on one or more of three core levers:

Reach — Getting your content in front of people who don't follow you yet. This is driven by shares, hashtags, SEO, the algorithm's distribution decisions, and collaborations.

Relevance — Making your content so valuable, entertaining, or resonant to a specific audience that they feel compelled to follow, save, or share it. Relevance is the engine of organic growth.

Relationships — The active, human side of social media. Genuine engagement with your community, collaborators, and potential customers. Relationships create the trust that turns followers into buyers.

Pull all three levers consistently, and growth becomes compounding — each new follower brings more reach, which brings more followers, which builds a stronger community.

How Algorithms Actually Work (Simplified)

Every major platform uses a machine-learning algorithm to decide which content to show to which users. While each platform's algorithm is unique (see Section 2), they all share a common logic: they measure engagement signals to determine content quality.

Key signals include:

Watch time / dwell time — How long someone watches your video or reads your post before scrolling away

Save rate — Users saving your content signals extremely high value to algorithms

Share rate — Shares push your content to entirely new audiences outside your followers

Comment depth — Multi-turn conversations signal stronger community than one-word replies

Profile visits — People tapping through to learn more about you from a post signals strong intent

Follower action rate — The percentage of your followers who engage tells platforms how relevant you are to your own community

The Organic Growth Flywheel

When these elements work together, they create a self-reinforcing cycle of growth:

Your job is to start the flywheel spinning. Once it has momentum, growth accelerates on its own — and that's the power of a truly organic strategy.

ALGORITHM MASTERY BY PLATFORM

No two platforms rank content the same way. Understanding the unique logic of each algorithm you operate on is one of the highest-leverage things you can do as an organic marketer. Here's your platform-by-platform breakdown.

Instagram

Instagram's algorithm prioritizes Reels above all other formats for new-audience reach. The Explore page is driven by save and share signals — posts that get saved are pushed to users with similar interests. Stories reach your existing followers; Reels reach people who don't follow you yet. To grow on Instagram, Reels are non-negotiable.

Post Reels consistently (aim for 3–5 per week at growth stage)

Write keyword-rich captions — Instagram now indexes captions for search

Use the "Add Topic" tag feature to help Instagram categorize your Reels

End every Reel with a clear CTA that drives saves or shares

Use Collab posts to appear on two profiles simultaneously

TikTok

TikTok's For You Page (FYP) algorithm is the most powerful organic distribution engine in social media history. Watch time is the dominant signal — if people watch your video more than once, TikTok distributes it aggressively. Hashtags matter less here than on other platforms; niche content wins because TikTok uses video content analysis (captions, sounds, visuals) to identify your audience.

Hook in the first 0–2 seconds — the critical retention window

Create content in a specific niche to train TikTok's algorithm to find your exact audience

Use trending sounds (but only those relevant to your brand)

Captions are indexed — use natural keywords your audience would search

Post at least 1x per day during growth phases

Facebook

Facebook's algorithm heavily favors comments and shares over passive likes. Content that sparks conversation is prioritized in the feed. Facebook Groups and Events are powerful organic reach tools, especially for local businesses. The platform's reach for business pages has declined for organic posts — but Groups remain a strong free channel.

Ask open-ended questions in posts to drive comment threads

Post natively to Facebook rather than sharing links (link posts get suppressed)

Run or actively participate in relevant Facebook Groups

Facebook Live still gets elevated organic reach

LinkedIn

LinkedIn's algorithm is uniquely time-sensitive: engagement within the first hour of posting determines how widely a post is distributed. The platform rewards niche professional content, thoughtful long-form posts, and genuine comment conversations. LinkedIn's algorithm also heavily weights content that keeps users on LinkedIn — avoid external links in the post body.

Post during business hours (Tuesday–Thursday, 8–10 AM your audience's timezone)

Respond to every comment within the first 60 minutes

Put links in the first comment, not the post body

Personal profiles outperform business pages for organic reach

Write personal, story-driven posts about business lessons

Pinterest

Pinterest is a visual search engine, not a social network. Growth is driven by SEO — keywords in your pin titles, descriptions, board names, and alt text. Unlike other platforms, Pinterest content has a very long shelf life: a well-optimized pin can drive traffic for years. Consistency matters more than virality.

Research keywords using Pinterest's search bar autocomplete

Create fresh pins daily (even repins of existing content count)

Optimize every board name and description with search keywords

Tall images (2:3 ratio, 1000x1500px) perform best

Link every pin to a specific, relevant page on your website

X (Twitter)

X's algorithm rewards replies and retweets over passive likes. Engaging in trending conversations and popular threads can dramatically increase your visibility. Twitter Lists are a powerful relationship-building tool that most users ignore. The platform also heavily rewards consistency and account seniority.

Engage with trending topics relevant to your niche

Reply to large accounts in your industry thoughtfully — their audience sees you

Create and curate Twitter Lists of ideal customers and collaborators

Thread posts (multi-tweet sequences) get significantly more reach than single tweets

HASHTAG AND SEO STRATEGIES (FREE)

How Hashtags Work in 2025 — Platform by Platform

Hashtag strategy has evolved significantly. They are no longer a universal reach tool — their effectiveness varies dramatically by platform.

Instagram: Use 3–5 highly relevant hashtags. Instagram now recommends fewer, targeted hashtags over 30 generic ones. Instagram's search function indexes captions and hashtags equally.

TikTok: Hashtags play a secondary role to content quality. Include 3–5 niche-relevant hashtags plus #ForYou or #ForYouPage sparingly. Content and sound matter far more.

LinkedIn: 3–5 professional hashtags are optimal. LinkedIn actively surfaces content through hashtag following.

Facebook: Hashtags have minimal impact. Skip them or use just 1–2 for brand consistency.

Pinterest: Not relevant — Pinterest SEO is driven entirely by keywords in titles and descriptions.

X (Twitter): 1–2 relevant hashtags per tweet. Trending hashtags offer real short-term reach opportunities.

Free Hashtag Research Tools

Instagram Search Bar — Type a hashtag and see post count and related tags. Free and built-in.

TikTok Search & Creative Center — Discover trending hashtags in your category. Free.

Pinterest Search Autocomplete — The best keyword research tool for Pinterest. Built-in.

Hashtagify (Free Tier) — Analyze hashtag popularity and find related tags. Free basic plan available.

Display Purposes — Free web tool to generate relevant Instagram hashtag sets from a seed keyword.

The 3-Tier Hashtag Strategy

Build every hashtag set using this three-tier framework to maximize reach across audience segments:

Social SEO: The New Frontier of Organic Discovery

Social SEO — optimizing your profiles, captions, and content for search — is one of the most underutilized free growth strategies available. Platforms like Instagram and TikTok now function as search engines, especially for Gen Z and Millennial audiences who search social media before Google.

Optimize these elements with natural, searchable keywords:

Username & Display Name: Include your primary keyword (e.g., "Sarah | Tulsa Wedding Florist")

Bio: State clearly what you do, who you serve, and where you're located

Captions: Write naturally, but include the terms your ideal customer would search for

Alt text: Add descriptive, keyword-rich alt text to every image you upload (available on Instagram, Facebook, and LinkedIn)

Pinterest Descriptions: Treat every pin description like a mini blog post — 100–200 words, keyword-rich, helpful

Free Keyword Research Tools

Google Trends (free) — Compare keyword popularity over time, spot seasonal trends, and find related queries

AnswerThePublic (free tier) — Visualizes the questions people are asking around any keyword — perfect for content ideas

Google Search Autocomplete — Type your topic into Google and note the autocomplete suggestions — those are real searches

YouTube Search Bar — Great for discovering long-tail video content topics

COMMUNITY BUILDING AND ENGAGEMENT TACTICS

The Engagement Rule: Give Before You Ask

The fastest way to grow organically is to be genuinely generous on social media before you ever ask for anything. This means showing up in conversations that aren't about you, adding value in communities you didn't create, and treating every interaction as a relationship — not a transaction.

The businesses that grow fastest on social media are not the ones broadcasting the loudest. They are the ones listening the most actively and responding the most thoughtfully.

The 30-Minute Engagement Sprint

One of the highest-ROI free activities you can do on social media is the "engagement sprint" — a focused 15-minute block of active engagement before you post and another after you post. This technique primes the algorithm by showing high account activity around your posting window.

Before you post (15 minutes):

Like and comment thoughtfully on 10–15 posts in your niche using relevant hashtags

Reply to any unanswered comments or DMs on your last post

Leave 3–5 substantive comments on large accounts in your industry

After you post (15 minutes):

Reply to every early comment — this signals high engagement velocity to algorithms

Share your post to Stories (on Instagram/Facebook) to drive initial traffic

Engage on 5–10 more posts in related hashtags to keep your activity signal high

How to Comment Meaningfully

Generic comments ("Great post! 🔥") do nothing for you or the other person. Meaningful comments that add value, share a perspective, or ask a thoughtful follow-up question get you noticed — by the account, their audience, and the algorithm.

Facebook Groups, LinkedIn Groups, and Reddit Communities

Groups and communities are some of the most overlooked organic growth channels for small businesses. The rules are simple: contribute first, promote later.

Facebook Groups: Join 3–5 groups where your ideal customer hangs out. Answer questions, share expertise, and be genuinely helpful. Don't post promotional content until you have established credibility. Most groups allow promotional posts on designated days.

LinkedIn Groups: Ideal for B2B businesses. Join niche professional groups, participate in discussions, and share relevant articles or insights. This establishes authority with potential business clients.

Reddit: Find subreddits relevant to your niche or local area. Reddit communities are deeply allergic to self-promotion, but if you engage authentically first, sharing your expertise organically positions you as a trusted resource. Search r/Tulsa or your local subreddit for community-specific opportunities.

Creating Your Own Facebook Group

For small businesses ready to take community-building seriously, creating a Facebook Group is one of the most powerful free strategies available. A business-owned group allows you to build an engaged community, provide exclusive value, and have direct access to your audience without algorithm interference.

Best practices for a small business Facebook Group:

Name it around a topic or lifestyle, not your business (e.g., "Tulsa Home Bakers Community," not "Maria's Bakery Group")

Establish clear group rules that encourage sharing and discourage spam

Post valuable content daily: tips, questions, challenges, behind-the-scenes

Host monthly Live Q&A sessions to drive membership and loyalty

Feature members' stories and successes to create belonging

Promote your services subtly, naturally, and occasionally — not relentlessly

Responding to Comments and DMs: Templates and Best Practices

Every unanswered comment is a missed growth opportunity. Every ignored DM is a potential customer who moved on. Build the habit of responding to every message within 24 hours — ideally within the hour during peak engagement windows.

DM response framework (for warm inquiries):

COLLABORATIONS AND CROSS-PROMOTION (FREE)

Why Collaborations Are the Fastest Free Growth Strategy

When you collaborate with another business or creator, you instantly gain access to their entire audience — people who already trust content recommendations from someone they follow. A single well-matched collaboration can do what months of solo posting cannot: introduce you to hundreds or thousands of warm, interested new followers in one day.

And the best part? All of the collaboration formats below are completely free.

Types of Free Collaborations

Instagram Collab Posts: One post, two accounts. Both accounts are credited as co-authors and the post appears in both feeds — doubling your exposure instantly.

TikTok Duets: Create a video responding side-by-side to another creator's video. Great for commentary, reactions, and how-to extensions.

TikTok Stitches: Clip a segment of another video and add your own response or take. Ideal for educational or opinion-based content.

Podcast Guest Appearances: Approach niche podcasts with a small but loyal audience. Guest spots are almost always free and deliver highly qualified, long-form-listening audiences.

Guest Blog Posts: Write a valuable article for a complementary business's blog or newsletter in exchange for an author bio with links to your social profiles.

Joint Instagram or TikTok Lives: Host a joint Live with a complementary business. Both accounts' followers receive notifications, and you engage each other's audiences in real time.

Joint Challenges or Campaigns: Create a shared content challenge or campaign theme with a partner — each posting your own take under a shared hashtag.

How to Find and Pitch Potential Collaborators

The ideal collaborator has: a similar audience size to you, a complementary (non-competing) business, an engaged community (high comment-to-follower ratio), and a consistent posting history.

Find them by searching your niche hashtags, browsing the "suggested" accounts on your profile, and looking at who your best customers follow.

Collaboration pitch email template:

Cross-Promotion with Complementary Businesses

Cross-promotion is the practice of mutually promoting each other's businesses to your respective audiences. It works best when both businesses serve the same customer demographic but don't compete.

Local business cross-promotion ideas:

A bakery + a wedding photographer: tag each other in wedding-themed posts

A personal trainer + a health food café: co-create "healthy lifestyle" content

A real estate agent + a home staging company: collaborate on "home tour" posts

A children's boutique + a family photographer: co-host a free mini-session giveaway

A bookstore + a local coffee shop: "reading + coffee" bundled promotions

A yoga studio + a massage therapist: "wellness weekend" joint content series

USER-GENERATED CONTENT (UGC) STRATEGIES

What UGC Is — and Why It's Free Gold

User-Generated Content (UGC) is any content — photos, videos, reviews, testimonials, unboxing videos — created by your customers or followers featuring your product or service. It is the most credible, cost-effective content a business can have, because it functions as authentic social proof at zero cost.

Studies consistently show that consumers trust peer content significantly more than brand-created content. When a real customer posts about your product, their followers take note — and those followers are warm, qualified leads.

How to Encourage Customers to Post and Tag You

UGC doesn't happen by accident — you have to ask for it, make it easy, and reward it.

Ask at the point of delivery: Include a card or sticker with purchases that says "Share your experience and tag us @[handle]!"

Add your handle to all packaging, receipts, and email confirmations

Create a branded hashtag and include it everywhere — on your packaging, website, storefront, and email signature

Feature UGC prominently on your profile — when customers see you reshare, they want to be featured too

Respond enthusiastically to every tag: A quick DM saying "We loved your post — thank you!" goes a long way

Running Free UGC Campaigns

You don't need a budget to run a UGC campaign. Here are three free campaign frameworks:

The Hashtag Challenge: Create a branded challenge hashtag. Post your own version first to demonstrate, then invite your community to participate with a clear CTA. Feature the best submissions on your profile.

"Show Us How You Use It" Campaign: Ask customers to post a photo or video of themselves using your product in their daily life and tag your handle for a chance to be featured on your page.

Community Spotlight Series: Dedicate a weekly post to featuring a customer's photo or story. This creates a recurring content slot that costs nothing and builds deep loyalty.

How to Ethically Reshare UGC

Before resharing any customer content, follow these steps to stay ethical and legal:

Always ask permission — even if the customer tagged you. A simple DM asking "We love this — can we share it on our page?" is courteous and builds goodwill.

Tag and credit the original creator in both the caption and visually on the post

Never crop out the creator's watermark or username from a video or image

Save original posts before resharing in case the creator later deletes their post

Free UGC Tools

Repost for Instagram (free app): Easily reshare Instagram posts to your feed with credit maintained

TikTok's Native Save Feature: Download TikToks from customers (with creator credit intact) to reshare

Instagram Stories Mention Feature: When tagged in a Story or post, reshare it to your own Stories instantly — zero tools required

Google Alerts (free): Set alerts for your business name to catch mentions across the web

VIRAL CONTENT MECHANICS

What Makes Content Shareable

Virality is not random. Research in social psychology and content marketing consistently identifies a small set of emotional and functional triggers that drive people to share content. Understanding these triggers lets you build shareability into every piece of content you create — without "going viral" needing to be the goal.

The four pillars of shareable content:

Emotion: Content that makes people feel something strongly — inspired, surprised, amused, moved, outraged — gets shared. The stronger the emotional response, the higher the share rate. Aim for joy, awe, humor, or deep relatability.

Utility: People share content that makes them look helpful to their network. "How-to" content, tips, hacks, templates, and checklists are consistently among the most-shared content types across all platforms.

Identity: Humans share content that says something about who they are. Content that reflects a value, identity, community, or worldview the viewer wants to signal to others gets shared. "Yes, this is exactly me" content.

Humor: Funny content breaks through noise. A well-executed, on-brand joke or relatable meme can outperform months of serious content in a single day. Don't be afraid to be funny — just stay true to your brand voice.

Engineering Shareability Without Chasing Virality

The irony of viral content is that the businesses that chase it rarely achieve it — and the ones that focus on genuine value creation hit it accidentally, often. Instead of asking "How do I go viral?" ask:

"Would my ideal customer send this to a friend?" If not, why not?

"Does this post make the viewer feel seen, helped, or delighted?"

"Is there a save-worthy insight in this post?"

"Does this end with a reason to comment — a question, a debate, a relatable scenario?"

Build these questions into your content review checklist before every post.

Trending Formats and Sounds: Finding and Using Them Wisely

Trending audio on TikTok and Instagram Reels gives your content a significant algorithmic boost because platforms actively promote trending sounds. The key is using trends in ways that are genuinely relevant to your brand.

How to find trending audio and formats for free:

TikTok Creative Center → Trending: Free access to trending sounds, hashtags, and content formats in your region

Instagram's Reels tab: Audio marked with an upward arrow icon is currently trending

Spend 10 minutes on the FYP daily: Notice recurring formats, transitions, and sounds — these are your trendspotting sessions

Follow "trend report" accounts: Several free accounts on TikTok and Instagram post weekly trend roundups

Participating in Trends While Staying On-Brand

Not every trend belongs on your feed. The test is simple: can you put your business's unique spin on this trend in a way that feels natural? If yes, do it fast — trends move quickly. If it feels forced, skip it. Participating in an irrelevant trend for the sake of reach signals inauthenticity to your audience and can actually hurt your brand perception.

CONVERTING FOLLOWERS INTO CUSTOMERS

The Social Media Sales Funnel

Growing an audience is only half the mission. The other half — and the part that actually generates revenue — is converting that audience into paying customers. This requires understanding the social media sales funnel and creating content for each stage.

Link-in-Bio Optimization

Your link in bio is your social media storefront. Most platforms allow only one clickable link in the profile — make it count. Use a free link-in-bio page to host multiple destinations from a single URL.

Linktree (free tier): Create a simple landing page with multiple links — your website, booking page, free download, latest post, etc.

Later Link Page (free tier): Similar to Linktree, integrated with Later's scheduling tool

Bio.fm (free): More customizable link page with media embedding

Your own website landing page: If you have a website, create a dedicated "Start Here" page that mirrors what a link-in-bio page would do — and keeps traffic on your own domain

What to include on your link-in-bio page: Your most time-sensitive offer, a free lead magnet (see below), your top product/service page, booking or contact link, and your most recent blog post or content.

DM Funnels: Turning Warm Conversations into Sales

The DM funnel is one of the most powerful free sales tools available on social media. It works by using public content to drive private conversations, then converting those conversations into sales through natural, value-first dialogue.

How to set up a simple DM funnel:

Create a post that promises something valuable: "Want the 5 steps I use to [achieve result]? Comment 'YES' and I'll send it to you."

When a user comments, send them a DM with the promised resource

In the DM, ask a qualifying question: "What's your biggest challenge with [topic] right now?"

Respond with genuine help, then naturally introduce how your product or service addresses their specific situation

Offer a low-friction next step: a free consultation, a sample, a booking link

Free Lead Magnet Ideas for Social Media

A lead magnet is a free, valuable resource you offer in exchange for an email address. Email is the most reliable way to maintain direct communication with your audience — unlike social followers, email subscribers are yours regardless of algorithm changes.

A PDF checklist or cheat sheet (create free with Canva)

A free mini-guide or ebook (1–5 pages)

A free template (spreadsheet, content calendar, meal plan, budget tracker)

A free video mini-training or webinar recording

A discount code or exclusive offer for subscribers

A free quiz with personalized results

Access to a free private community (Facebook Group)

Driving Website Traffic from Social Media

Instagram: Link in bio + "link in bio" CTA in captions; Story links (available to all accounts now)

TikTok: Link in bio once you have 1,000 followers; mention your website in captions and video

Pinterest: Link every pin to a relevant page — Pinterest is a top social media driver of website traffic

Facebook: Share blog posts natively; include your URL in posts strategically

LinkedIn: Add link in first comment (not post body) to avoid suppression

THE 90-DAY ORGANIC GROWTH PLAN

Sustainable growth doesn't happen in a single week. This 90-day plan gives you a structured, action-by-action roadmap to build real momentum using everything you've learned in this guide and across this entire series. Follow the sequence — don't skip ahead.

Focus: Get your systems, profiles, and content rhythm locked in before activating growth tactics.

Week 1 — Profile Audit and Optimization

Audit all profiles: optimize bios, display names, and profile photos with keywords

Set up or update your link-in-bio page with 3–5 clear destinations

Create your branded hashtag set using the 3-tier framework

Identify your 2 primary growth platforms (don't try to grow everywhere at once)

Week 2 — Hashtag and SEO Setup

Complete keyword research using Google Trends and AnswerThePublic

Build a master hashtag bank of 50+ researched tags organized by tier

Add alt text to existing photos on Facebook, Instagram, and LinkedIn

Write keyword-rich captions templates for your 3 most common content types

Week 3 — Engagement Habit Formation

Begin the 30-minute daily engagement sprint (before + after posting)

Join 3 Facebook or LinkedIn Groups relevant to your niche or ideal customer

Identify 10 potential collaborators in your niche — begin warm engagement

Respond to ALL comments and DMs within 24 hours, every day this month

Week 4 — Content Flywheel Activation

Batch-create 2 weeks of content using your content calendar from Guide 3

Create your first "save-worthy" post — a checklist, resource list, or how-to guide

Post your first "question" post to drive comments

Review analytics from the month using Guide 4 metrics framework

Focus: Actively pursue reach, relationships, and collaborations. Start building community assets.

Week 5 — Collaboration Outreach

Pitch your first 3 collaboration proposals using the email template in Section 5

Schedule your first joint Instagram Live or TikTok collaboration

Propose a cross-promotion swap with at least one local complementary business

Week 6 — UGC Campaign Launch

Launch your branded hashtag publicly with a campaign post and clear CTA

Contact your 10 most loyal customers personally and ask them to share and tag

Begin a "Customer Spotlight" weekly feature on your profile

Reshare all UGC received with credit and personalized captions

Week 7 — Community Building

If applicable: launch your Facebook Group with a clear community purpose

Begin actively participating in groups daily — answer questions, share expertise

Start your DM funnel with one "Comment for the resource" post

Week 8 — Viral Content Testing

Create one trending-format Reel or TikTok using current trending audio

Test one "emotion-first" content piece (funny, heartwarming, or surprising)

Test one "utility-first" piece (your best how-to content)

Note which performs best — this is your format signal for Month 3

Focus: Use data from Months 1 and 2 to cut what isn't working, amplify what is, and build long-term growth habits.

Week 9 — Deep Analytics Review

Pull 60-day analytics from all platforms (use Guide 4 frameworks)

Identify your top 5 posts by reach, saves, and engagement rate

Identify patterns: what topic, format, timing, and tone performed best?

Document your personal "what works" playbook

Week 10 — Content Strategy Refinement

Create 3 new versions of your highest-performing post concept

Eliminate content formats and topics that consistently underperform

Increase posting frequency on your best-performing platform by 25%

Week 11 — Collaboration Scale-Up

Execute your second and third collaborations with new partners

Submit guest post applications to 3 blogs or newsletters in your niche

Pitch 2–3 niche podcasts for guest appearances

Week 12 — Conversion Activation

Launch your first lead magnet and promote it across all platforms for one full week

Set up (or optimize) your email welcome sequence for new subscribers

Review your link-in-bio click data and update the page accordingly

Calculate your 90-day growth results and celebrate your milestones!

Weekly Action Checklist (All 3 Months)

- ☐ Post [platform-specific frequency] per week on your 2 primary platforms
- ☐ Complete the 30-minute daily engagement sprint at least 5 days per week
- ☐ Reply to every comment and DM within 24 hours
- ☐ Engage meaningfully in at least 2 community groups
- ☐ Review previous week's analytics (takes 10 minutes)
- ☐ Reshare or acknowledge any UGC or mentions received
- ☐ Batch-create next week's content (minimum 1 hour per week)
- ☐ Identify and act on one growth opportunity (collaboration, trend, community)
